

Chapter 3

Integrating Mobility in Multimodal Transportation Systems: A Comprehensive Analysis and Their Impact on Urban Mobility

Manmeet Kaur Arora

 <https://orcid.org/0009-0002-5071-117X>

Sharda University, India

Sahil Lal

 <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-9827-3717>

Sharda University, India

Bhupinder Singh

 <https://orcid.org/0009-0006-4779-2553>

Sharda University, India

Saquib Ahmed

 <https://orcid.org/0009-0008-1891-6910>

Sharda University, India

Christian Kaunert

 <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-4493-2235>

Dublin City University, Ireland & University of South Wales, UK

ABSTRACT

As cities face the escalating demands of urban mobility, sustainability, and accessibility, multimodal transportation systems are gaining recognition as a solution to these complex challenges. It examines how different modes of transport (cars, public transport, bicycles, walking, and micromobility) can be integrated into seamless transport networks which improve the user experience as well as the efficiency of transport operations. The chapter outlines the challenges facing multimodal systems, including complex iteration requirements, coordination between the numerous different transportation providers, differing regulatory environments, and the need for users to adapt to integrated systems. It goes on to highlight best practices, keeping users at the centre of the agenda when introducing new integrated ticketing solutions and developing robust infrastructure to support such systems in place. It concludes with policy recommendations, stressing the need for regulatory alignment, sustainable funding frameworks, and incentives for sustainable practices.

DOI: 10.4018/979-8-3693-9410-6.ch003

INTRODUCTION

Multimodal transportation is a groundbreaking mode of transport, providing the accessibility and interconnectivity to help the passage of people and goods. This system recognizes that no individual mode can serve all transportation needs effectively, therefore striving for a mix of transportation modes, including walking, cycling, public transportation, and private vehicles. The idea behind Travelled is based on the belief that improving accessibility and transportation, is only possible by taking the big picture of the transport world through the connection between different transport methods. Multimodal transportation seeks to combine not only the strengths of individual modes of transport but also its supplementary benefits to fulfill the needs of mobility solutions in the urban and regional context effectively. With the rising urbanization, population density, and environmental challenges, multimodal transportation has gained significant importance. As urban centres grow and traffic congestion worsens, legacy car-first planning paradigms no longer are up to the task. Multimodal systems, which promote multifaceted transportation methods, have relieved traffic, lowered emissions, and increased the quality of living and disposition of the inhabitants. Additionally, multimodal transport facilitates economic development by expanding access to employment, services, and recreation (Toshniwal, 2024).

Mobility and Accessibility Multimodal transportation planning is inherently about mobility and accessibility. Mobility describes the potential of people to travel from origins to destinations with different modes of transportation, and accessibility measures how well agents can access desired activities and services distributed over geographic space (Sharma, 2024). Core features. The conceptual boundaries of multimodal transport are drawn along a few important principles: Context-sensitive approach looking at the larger transportation ecosystem Holistic 16 more pages are available in the full version of this document, which may be purchased using the "Add to Cart" button on the publisher's webpage: www.igi-global.com/chapter/integrating-mobility-in-multimodal-transportation-systems/371237

Related Content

MHLM Majority Voting Based Hybrid Learning Model for Multi-Document Summarization

Suneetha S. and Venugopal Reddy A. (2019). International Journal of Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning (pp. 67-81).

www.irma-international.org/article/mhlm-majority-voting-based-hybrid-learning-model-for-multi-document-summarization/233890

Predictive Pioneers: Bridging the Mental Health Gap in Older Adults Through Advanced Digital Technologies

Rita Komalasari (2024). Using Machine Learning to Detect Emotions and Predict Human Psychology (pp. 99-129).

www.irma-international.org/chapter/predictive-pioneers/340216

Identifying Patterns in Fresh Produce Purchases: The Application of Machine Learning Techniques

Timofei Bogomolov, Malgorzata W. Korolkiewicz and Svetlana Bogomolova (2022). Research Anthology on Machine Learning Techniques, Methods, and Applications (pp. 817-847).

www.irma-international.org/chapter/identifying-patterns-in-fresh-produce-purchases/307485

Churn Prediction in a Pay-TV Company via Data Classification

Ilayda Ulku, Fadime Uney Yuksektepe, Oznur Yilmaz, Merve Ulku Aktas and Nergiz Akbalik (2021). International Journal of Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning (pp. 39-53).

www.irma-international.org/article/churn-prediction-in-a-pay-tv-company-via-data-classification/266495

Recent Application of Deep Neural Network and Data Augmentation for Classifying Leaf Diseases

R. Angeline, Raunak Agarwal, Sidhant Kumar Sidharthand Pratik Raj Biresh (2023). Handbook of Research on Advanced Practical Approaches to Deepfake Detection and Applications (pp. 245-256).

www.irma-international.org/chapter/recent-application-of-deep-neural-network-and-data-augmentation-for-classifying-leaf-diseases/316758